OPINION AND COMMENT

The student body, the sine qua non of the University, is back with half a thousand new men academic and professional. As per usual the student body is facing the year with confidence. The momentum of its tradition through a century and its typical self-mastery last year under new, difficult and congested conditions, bespeak its resolved conquest of all obstacles whether of making two beds grow where only one has grown before, or licking Virginia in football, winning the State championship in baseball and track, putting the infant Tar Baby on the trains and at the newsstands in terms of the largest circulation of any student publication in the southern states, having the Tar Heel quoted by the press from one end of the State to the other, making Gerrard Hall platform, by student initiative, the jumping off place and keynote sounding board in the four-cornered gubernatorial campaign; winning debates with Washington and Lee and Johns Hopkins, and sustaining an all-round record-breaking year in spirit and campus morals. The year was an illustration of a restored Carolina spirit that had reached over the rent and shadow of war and reestablished its old roitage and carried forward her great tradition.

While a spirit of unrest and dissatisfaction swept over the colleges north, south and west the student body of the University kept its head and went on its way rejoicing to meet the difficult problems of congestion and readjustment. The news of numerous student strikes as aftermaths of the war and as by-products of bolshevism, came to a disinfectious student body intent not upon kicking against but upon assimilating its troubles and mastering its problems. When the issue of the right of the athletic management to impose a charge for the Virginia game on the home grounds was agitated, the student body, instead of going on a strike against taxation without representation, met in lively assembly and voluntarily voted the additional tax upon themselves. When a Carolina baseball player interfered (clumsily or otherwise) with the throw of the A. and E. catcher, the student body under the leadership of a half dozen students met in mass meeting and expressed unreserved regret to their sister college and offered to cancel an overwhelming victory for a substitute game. This voluntary student action sent a responding thrill of sportsmanship over the A. and E. student body and they individually and variously carried the news to the State this summer, "They do things white at Carolina."

The student body took over chapel and conducted it on practically a voluntary basis. For two quarters the substance of faculty talks and the liveliness of the student affairs transacted through the brief chapel clearing house held a full attendance and elicited vital interest. The registrar conducted the attendance records on the voluntary basis. Though the interest and attendance dropped in the spring, the students are committed to the student-conducted chapel as a successful experiment for improvement and development. To call the roll of the constructive enterprises and achievements of the Campus Cabinet, the Student Honor Council, and the class of 1920, is to mark the year 1919-20 with the high lights of an outstanding year for its post-war readjustment and its restoration and advancement of student government. The campus community set apart in their Orange County woods has been adjudged the most completely self-governing and self-functioning student democracy in the American college world.

In complete accord with the love and interest which the late Victor S. Bryant, '90, always manifested toward the University was the provision in his will for the The Victor S. Bryant Bequest establishment by the University of a loan fund for the use of worthy students who otherwise would be denied the opportunity of a college education.

The purposes of the will and the method of its carrying out are made plain in the following words:

Item 9: Should there remain any funds or property after paying the amounts herein bequested and devised and setting aside the bequests herein made, then I give and bequeath to the University of North Carolina the sum of five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars (increased to $7,500 in a codicil which provides a like amount for the establishment of a similar fund for the North Carolina College for Women.—Editor) to be loaned with or without security at the rate of six per cent interest to worthy and needy young men seeking an education at said institution of learning. Should any of my sons or my grandchildren or my descendants, or any of the sons of my brothers or sisters or their descendants enter the University I desire the interest on this fund to be used in paying their expenses while there without any obligation on their part to repay the same.

In making this bequest Mr. Bryant not only rendered the University an additional service to the many by which his connection with it has always been characterized, but directed anew the attention of the alumni and the State to the tremendous importance of investing money in the training of young men and women.

Through this bequest Mr. Bryant strengthened the arm of the University for its task and made permanent his distinguished service to North Carolina.

Within the years gone by the University has been the beneficiary of a number of wills written by alumni who, realizing the service rendered them in their student days, have sought to repay in some part their Alma Mater by materially aiding in carrying on the work of preparing others for lives of usefulness and service. Similarly, friends of the University have wisely added to Carolina's usefulness through bequests. But while this is true, the fact remains that alumni and citizens of the State in general have not learned the real significance of supporting the University in this way.

In October of 1916, this matter was brought definitely to the attention of Carolina men by a special article and editorial in THE REVIEW with the result that a large percentage of the class of 1916 wrote Carolina into their wills. Recently Charles Cason, formerly alumni secretary of Vanderbilt University, taking the suggestion from THE REVIEW, proposed to a group of Vanderbilt alumni at their annual dinner, the foundation of a Vanderbilt Will Club. A quotation from his proposal which should receive the consideration of every Carolina alumnus, follows:

I propose a new club to which every alumnus and every citizen is eligible. Its name is to be the Vanderbilt Will Club. The first requisite for membership is to name Vanderbilt as a beneficiary in your will. The second is to get someone else to do the same.

A reputable magazine published the statement four years ago, that Harvard University was the beneficiary then of 600 wills already probated, and gave $10,000,000 as the minimum estimate of what these bequests would bring to Harvard on the death of the testators. There is a tradition around Boston that if a man there dies without making a bequest to Harvard he will be doomed to eternal punishment.

Similar records of bequests exist at Yale, Princeton, Columbia and most of the other eastern universities. A list of Yale endowments published in 1917 showed 560 special gifts totaling $17,500,000. Since that time there have been many large gifts to Yale. These endowments were not all bequests, but many of them were. A source of income for Yale of increasing magnitude and significance is the Alumni Fund, to which alumni make annual contributions.

In the South we are acquiring the habit of wise giving, but not of willing. In that the East has set us many fine examples. Millions of dollars were willed last year to eastern universities, more perhaps to any one of the large ones than was willed in the entire South to all the southern universities combined. We cannot grow faster than our schools. And we are ready for phenomenal growth. We are no longer poor. Increasingly must we look to our own section and not to others for our education and for the support of our educational institutions. We should be ashamed not to. If the East seems to have more devoted men of great means than we have, we should show that we have a greater number of devoted men of small means.

Institutions built by many will do more good than those built by few. If one-half of Vanderbilt's alumni should will to the University an average of $1,000 each the total would exceed the recent $4,000,000 gift to the Medical School. Think what such a democracy of devotion would mean. Think what a living monument it would be and how it would elevate the life of this state and this section!

No matter how much or how little a person has he can, without depriving dependents unduly, become a member of the Vanderbilt Will Club. More important than the wealth to will is the will to will.

Vanderbilt lawyers write a great many wills; they should insert a Vanderbilt paragraph into every one of them. Half of the testators would welcome the suggestion; the other half would never see it.

I do not think of membership in this club so much as a duty. I think of it as the greatest opportunity for the prolongation of life and for increasing service through coming generations that any man will ever have.

We are soon forgotten; our definite influences for good soon cease. There is no surer service after death than through institutions like Vanderbilt. There is no finer vestige of immortality.

Sometimes THE REVIEW concludes that it indulges in entirely too much preachment—too much bearing down on the heavy pedal. Consequently, it is with reluctance that at the beginning of the new year which has opened so auspiciously, it asks the alumni to forget football and reminiscence long enough to visualize some of the facts which the University is facing in this year 1920-21.

To begin with, it is folly for North Carolina to fail to provide adequate dormitories, recitation rooms, laboratories, and equipment for the proper education of its sons and daughters. Nothing in the world is plainer than this. It is utter folly to turn away 1,000 students who have knocked in vain at the doors of the University since June 1st. But this is exactly what we have done. The one thousand and first managed to get in recently after writing to twenty-six different officers, houses, etc., in the effort to get a room! And if he hadn't gotten that, no college in North Carolina could have taken him in and given him the courses he wanted, because the situation obtaining in Bethlehem 2,000 years ago obtains throughout the college towns of North Carolina today—there isn't room within the inn. As President Chase said in his address to the alumni in June, the capacity of every college in North Carolina should be doubled. Certainly the University's should be and immediately.

In the second place, the University must have more money for its faculty. This matter has been talked about and dealt with in a partial way, but it has never been handled adequately. To the casual observer to whom numbers and buildings appeal, the first need of the University is an increased physical plant. But to the insider, to the man who loses sleep at night wondering how the driving power of the University is to be maintained, the real need of the University is unequivocal assurance that the faculty is not to suffer attrition through resignations for larger rewards elsewhere, that it is not to become mediocre through failure to recruit itself from promising material, and that it need not be distracted from the real work of instructing and inspiring the youth of the State by the uncertainties of its financial status.

Here, gentlemen, is the big fact. With a salary scale for full professors of $3,600, after fifteen years of service, in contrast with salary scales elsewhere ranging from $2,000 (without any questions asked) for instructors up to $6,000 and $8,000 for professors, the present line-up cannot be maintained indefinitely on hopes and promises. Under these conditions the twenty members of the faculty of the seventy-three of rank above instructors who have been sought by other institutions in the past eighteen months, cannot be held. Similarly, such losses in the headships of departments as those of Dean Stacy and Dr. Raper cannot be properly filled and likely young men, the sort essential to the upbuilding of expanding departments, cannot be secured and worked into service. The demand for skilled, productive instructors, due to the rush of students to the colleges of the country (Michigan enrolls 12,000 this winter) and to the failure of college men to enter the profession of teaching in recent years, forces Carolina into full competition with the big Universities and compels her to pay the price which they can afford. And it is unescapable that she must pay it if she is to hold her own. And, finally, "you cannot make bricks without straw."

We wouldn't be flippant for the world, but "Boys, get the money." "Step on it!"

The third fact is none the less vital. It is that the alumni are not alive to this situation.

THE REVIEW is not indulging in any Think It scare heads. Nor is it squealing. It's Over doing its best to watch the situation here on this hill in relation to the situations obtaining in North Carolina and the nation, and to tell the alumni about what its conclusions are. To its mind, the next six months are months of vital concern to this institution. What the alumni do for her, and what the State does for her, will, in a greater measure than in any corresponding period in her history determine what her service to North Carolina shall be.

Think it over.

The study of statistics of classes graduating at other institutions is always interesting in that it enables Carolina men to see how they stack up with alumni hailing from another campus. One of the most complete studies of this sort has recently been made by Andy Whinery, secretary of the class of 1910 of Cornell University. Three hundred and fifty-two members of the class filled out the questionnaire.

The findings which THE REVIEW present here are those relating to salaries and incomes. The average salary for married men was $4,855; for single men $4,627. The average income, including salary was, for married men, $5,752; for single men $5,151. The highest salary was $30,000; the lowest $840. Twenty-one members received a salary of $10,000 to $15,000; four of $15,000 to $20,000; and seven from $20,000 up.

The most interesting classification, however, is that which indicates the average income by professions. When you have compared your income with that of your group, then take a look at the rewards of the teachers and you will better understand why for the past five years young men have stopped entering the teaching profession, and why it is necessary today for Carolina to dig up some real money if she is to succeed in turning some of the fine fellows who are going into banking and manufacturing and the professions into the class room. A few hundred dollars extra may hold the 40-year-old who has his house, his friends, his particular interests. But there's nothing doing when you start to lure the would-be recruit unless you have the lure!

Two actions of the extra session of the legislature, August 10-26, of unusual significance to THE REVIEW and which may be expected to affect profoundly the educational and governmental programs of North Carolina, were the underwriting of State Superintendent E. C. Brooks' salary scale for superintendents, principals, and teachers employed in the public schools of the State, and the elimination of any general property tax for State purposes.

According to the new program of teacher pay, professional training and experience in teaching have for the first time been officially recognized and rewarded by the State. Beginning this year the monthly salaries for second grade, provisional A and B, and temporary certificates range from $45 to $60. Teachers holding elementary school certificates who have had no college training will receive from $65 to $85 per month, the amount depending upon whether they are teaching for the first time or have had one, two, three or four years of experience. For teachers holding the same certificate, but who have had the equivalent of one year of college training, the rewards run from $75 to $95. Holders of higher certificates, primary, grammar, or high school who have had two years of college credit receive from $85 to $105 according to the length of service under five years. Graduates of normal schools or those having three years of college credit receive from $90 to $110, and graduates of A colleges receive from $100 to $133.33. The new schedule also underwrites so far as the State is concerned, the following annual maximum scale for principals and superintendents: Class A, $3,500; class B, $2,400; class C, $2,000; class D, $1,800; class E, $1,320. It is our understanding that these amounts can be, and in many instances are, increased by local tax districts or city school systems, the extra amounts being authorized by the local unit concerned rather than by the State.

Through the adoption of this program the foundation has been laid for a definite forward movement in the professional equipment of North Carolina teachers. It has been long delayed, but its coming is none the less welcome and significant.

THE REVIEW doubtless is not competent to pass judgment on the legislature for failure to levy a general property tax for State purposes. It has not gone into all the intricacies of special franchise taxes, corporation and railroad taxes, inheritance taxes, and income taxes out of which the State hopes to secure sufficient revenues for all State purposes. But in view of the fact that from the first day John White's colony set foot on Roanoke Island to this North Carolina has stood at the foot of the scale (or as near as she could get to the bottom without ruthlessly shoving South Carolina from the coveted position) in money spent for general State governmental purposes, it isn't particularly cheered by the prospect. In 1915 the amount spent per capita for these purposes was $1.76 in North Carolina while the average in the United States was $3.85. In 1919 the amounts were $2.54 in North Carolina and $6.05 in the United States. South Carolina plumbed the depths with $1.64 in 1915 and $2.40 in 1919.

THE REVIEW's fear, and seemingly a well-grounded fear, is that the proposed revenues will not suffice for the adequate, thorough-going support of State institutions, health programs, and other State-wide undertakings which must be more liberally financed in the future than they have been in the past if North Carolina is to write the chapter of progress in her history that she is abundantly able to write if only those to whose hands her destinies have been committed will allow her to do so.

The next great day on the University calendar is Tuesday, October twelfth—University Day. It marks the 127th birthday of the University and will be celebrated in hearty fashion by every alumnus everywhere. On the campus an attractive program as announced elsewhere will be carried out. In centers of population outside the State and in every town in North Carolina THE REVIEW trusts there will be a banquet or a smoker. Where regular officers are not provided, any interested alumnus may call together a committee of two or three men to undertake arrangements, make up the program, and see that the alumni come out.

THE REVIEW has no fixed opinion as to what the program should be. It believes, however, that some alumnus, or several, should tell what the University is doing, what problems it is facing, and that plans should be considered for helping forward that work locally and in the State and the nation at large. If citizens are present at the meetings who are not alumni, it may be well to have them participate in the program. Their interest is worth cultivating as the University is their University also.

If any alumnus desires facts concerning any particular subject such as the Graham Memorial Fund, the Alumni Loyalty Fund, the Carolina Playmakers, the Extension Service, the musical organizations, the new hotel, or the University in general, a post card to E. R. Rankin, Alumni Secretary, or any special officer will furnish the information.

There is one suggestion, however, which THE REVIEW passes on from the meeting of the secretaries of local associations held here last February. Don't spend too much of the meeting in reminiscences, and when it comes to naming officers for the following year, select those who will carry out a constructive program throughout the year.

THE REVIEW takes occasion to call the attention of the alumni to the programs of two alumni officers who for the year 1920-21 will be absent from the State in order to carry on studies at other institutions—Messrs. R. D. W. Connor, '99, President of the General Alumni Association and Secretary of the Board of Trustees, and Albert M. Coates, '18, Executive Secretary of the Graham Memorial Fund.

President Connor has been granted a leave of absence by the North Carolina Historical Commission and has entered Columbia University to continue his study of history. Mr. Coates goes to Harvard to enter the Law School.

THE REVIEW follows both of these loyal, effective alumni workers with its very best wishes, and at the same time it calls on other alumni to help fill the big gap in alumni activities which the temporary absence of these two men makes.

A letter from an alumnus who lets no day pass without thinking of ways for promoting the welfare of the University has the following suggestion concerning the Alumni Loyalty Fund.

A life insurance agent asked me the other day whether or not the Alumni Loyalty Fund is incorporated. The reason for this question is that a University alumnus wishes to take out a $5,000 policy payable to the Alumni Fund. If the Fund is incorporated the policy could be made payable directly to it; otherwise a trustee would have to be appointed.

It occurs to me that the Loyalty Fund ought to be incorporated, and I believe there is a good idea in this suggestion. If the Fund should be incorporated perhaps other alumni might be induced to take out life insurance policies for it.

The suggestion is now under consideration and an announcement relative to it will be made at an early date. In the meantime, send in a check to cover your contribution for the present year!

As indicated in another paragraph Mr. Albert M. Coates has entered the Law School of Harvard University and consequently has had to give up his work as Executive Secretary of the Graham Memorial Fund. According to the plans of the Committee Dr. Louis R. Wilson, Chairman of the faculty committee on the Fund, will continue Mr. Coates work, the next phase of which is concluding the campaign for subscriptions and proceeding with the selection of a site and plans for the building. In order that the campaign may be properly concluded every local director is urged to complete his work preferably by University Day, and every alumnus reached by THE REVIEW, but not in touch with other alumni is asked to send in a subscription card.

Dr. Charles Lee Raper, for nineteen years professor of economics in the University and for eleven years dean of the Graduate School, tendered his resignation in June and has become professor of transportation in Syracuse University, Syracuse, New York.

Dr. Raper's departure from the University faculty means the loss of a man who during a long period of teaching in North Carolina has made a record for high scholarship, for effective personal work with his students, and for personal and public service to his community, to the University, and to the State.

A close student of history and economics, Dr. Raper in recent years has made special studies in transportation and taxation which, together with his publications in these important fields, has caused him to be ranked as an authority in these subjects. He has been closely identified with tax reform movements in North Carolina and his services have frequently been sought by the general assembly in working out a program of taxation for the State.

Outside of his classroom in which for nineteen years he came in contact with the majority of the upper classmen of the University, Dr. Raper has exerted an unusually fine influence upon the campus. For years he lectured to the students of the Bible Class at the Methodist Church, and as a member of the University Debate Committee was constantly at the service of the members of the societies engaged in inter-society and inter-collegiate debate. He was one of the first members of the committee on University Extension, and in 1909 came to the headship of the Graduate School, from which he resigned in January, 1920.

In all these positions and through his home, Dr. Raper served with high distinction and the best wishes of THE REVIEW follow him in his new work. No announcement has been made by the University as to Dr. Raper's successor.

Mr. Francis F. Bradshaw, '16, the new dean of students, brings to his position qualities and experiences that eminently fit him for his important work. The son of a Presbyterian minister he has a life background in the task of guiding and adjusting human relationships. As waiter and headwaiter at Swain Hall he learned student life intimately from the inside. As president of the Student Council, General Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association, and as first lieutenant in the Field Artillery, Mr. Bradshaw has had just the experiences in campus and youthful leadership that prepare him and choose him for the student deanship. Dean Bradshaw has vital student contacts through his membership in the Phi Beta Kappa, Golden Fleece, Tau Kappa Alpha, Amphoteroben, Omega Delta, Epsilon Phi Delta, International Polity Club, and the Gimghouls, which represent and head up the scholastic, forensic, literary, and general campus and social activities of the University. Dean Graham, who, in addition to his work as teacher, administered in an unusually effective manner the affairs of the office during the first year of its establishment, in recommending Mr. Bradshaw as his successor, expressed the opinion and choice of faculty, students, and alumni. Dean Bradshaw will give his full time to the deanship. THE REVIEW bespeaks for him a continuation of the high service which his career so richly promises.

Throughout the eight years of its existence THE REVIEW has had little to say in its editorial or news columns about its ups and downs in the effort to make both ends meet financially. Some hard luck stories have been indulged in at several commencements which hark back to the launching of the enterprise, but the present business manager has kept the publication going after it once got definitely started.

In this connection we take pleasure in bearing testimony to the assistance which our advertisers have rendered in enabling the management to keep THE REVIEW up to standard. Comment, news, alumni notes, advertising all have their part in a balanced program, and our advertisers have played their part handsomely.

In return, it is but fair that the readers of THE REVIEW—we mean you, Mr. Alumnus—should recognize this service. Consequently, when you have occasion to deal in such wares as our advertisers display in these pages, deal with them, and tell them why!

VICTOR S. BRYANT, TRUSTEE, DIES

Alumni of the University and citizens of the State generally were shocked by press dispatches on the morning of September 2d carrying the announcement of the death of Victor S. Bryant, '90, of Durham, as a result of complications following an operation for appendicitis which he had undergone a week earlier.

By University men, with many of whom he had been in close association, Mr. Bryant was regarded not only as a most successful member of the Durham bar, but as one of the most liberal leaders in North Carolina public life. At the time of his death he had just returned from attending the extra session of the legislature where he framed some of the most important measures of that body. In educational matters, Mr. Bryant always showed an active interest, and to him is to be attributed in large part the drafting of the legislation enacted by the general assembly of 1919 providing for the six months school term in North Carolina. Another evidence of his abiding interest in the educational enrichment of the State was the provision in his will of bequests to the University and the North Carolina College for Women of $7,500 each as loan funds, the income from which is to be loaned to worthy young men and women seeking a college education. In addition to his service in the recent legislature, Mr. Bryant was a member of the State Senate in 1911 and within recent months had been a strong advocate of tax reform and suffrage.

Mr. Bryant's connection with the University has been of the intimate sort that has meant much to its usefulness and service to North Carolina. In 1901 he became a member of the Board of Trustees, and since he has served as a member of the Executive Committee. He has also served as a member of the Finance Committee of the Board, and since the death of President Graham has served as the chairman of the two committees having charge of the Graham Memorial Fund and the selection of the president of the University.

Mr. Bryant was a native of Mecklenburg County, having been born in Providence township on the 10th of December, 1867, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bryant. He received the Ph. B. degree from the University in 1890, and the following year was admitted to the practice of the law. He located in Roxboro, and in 1895 moved to Durham where he built up an unusually large and lucrative practice. At the time of his death he was a member of the firm of Bryant, Brogden and Bryant, the other members of the firm being W. J. Brogden, '98, and Victor S. Bryant, Jr., '18.

Dr. George Howe has been elected Associate Editor of The Classical Journal, the official publication of the Classical Association of the West and South.

AUSPICIOUS OPENING

The University Begins Its 126th Year With Registration Surpassing
That of Any Previous Year

Swinging forward into the second quarter of the second century of its existence the University on September 23 flung wide its doors to receive the largest number of students who have ever gathered at Chapel Hill.

Although classes were started and the formal exercises of the 126th opening were held that morning, lines of incoming students were still besieging the registrar's office and the Y. M. C. A. was still busy finding rooms for late comers who could not crowd their way into the college dormitories where many rooms already are housing four students.

The first two days of registration showed that 1,122 students had already entered the University. Of these 390 are freshmen. The figures in both instances are higher than at the same time last year and the final total figures are expected to surpass the record-beating session of 1919-1920.

Student organizations, beginning to function even before the University was formally opened, joined hands with the authorities to relieve congested conditions. The Campus Cabinet in its first meeting projected plans whereby class rooms will be kept open at night and especially fitted so that students may have quieter places for study than in the crowded dormitories. Members of the faculty and citizens of Chapel Hill who have never rented rooms are this year turning over space for students. "The congestion is worse than ever before," said President Chase, "but we hope that no student will be unable to find room."

The opening exercises were held in Memorial Hall with addresses of welcome by President Chase and Francis Bradshaw, the new dean of students. "The age is face to face with the terribly simple and yet absolutely fundamental question," President Chase told the students, "whether the destructive forces created by modern civilization shall gain the upper hand over its constructive achievements. Bolshevism and industrial unrest and moral confusion and red radicalism and city slums are just as truly creations of modern civilization as are the achievements of science, or good roads or public schools." President Chase continued:

You are, then, going out into an age which will be concerned with problems which involve the very foundation of our social structure. You and young men like you must evolve the answers. Your elders have, I think, been too much given over to the philosophy that holds that the problems of the world will settle themselves in the end, if only they are let alone strictly enough and long enough. It has been a comfortable philosophy, but it is not a philosophy that your age will tolerate. The march of events will be too swift, the situation too critical, for drifting and temporizing.

Your philosophy will necessarily be one of action, not one of passivity; and it will either, according as your action is well or badly conceived, raise humanity to a new level of achievement or involve mankind in a wreckage and a chaos in comparison with which the havoc wrought by the world war will be as nothing.

It is the faith of this University that with men of your years and attainments character develops best in an atmosphere of freedom. But the freedom in which the University believes is not freedom to do what one likes; it is the freedom to do what is right, to do it not because one is compelled to do it, but because he chooses to do it. Such a faith does not do away with responsibility; it puts the responsibility where it belongs, squarely on the man himself. It expects him to want to conduct himself as a fine citizen in a free community; if he lacks this desire it holds him unworthy of membership in the company of Carolina men.

There exists on this campus a mighty force, far stronger than that of codes and rules. That force is the force of public opinion, the opinion that grows out of the honor and the morality of this student body. It is swift to approve all that is fine and clean and noble, but it is stern and relentless when honor is violated, intolerant of all that is mean and ugly and low. I charge you, men of Carolina, cherish this precious thing that is yours; grow it, develop it into something still finer and higher. . . .

I have so strong a faith in the soundness and justice of the public opinion of this campus that I have come to this conclusion: A man who lives as the opinion of this campus holds that a Carolina man ought to live is exhibiting and developing those moral qualities, precisely the sort of character that the world outside this campus stands most in need of.

At night the new students were welcomed to the campus by the old students in the annual celebration of "College Night." President Chase and Prof. Frank Graham welcomed the new men into the college activities and campus leaders outlined some of the chances around them. William H. Bobbitt, of Charlotte, intercollegiate debater and Phi Beta Kappa honor man, discussed studies; Bailey Lipfert, of Winston-Salem, basketball and football player, talked on athletics; and W. R. Berryhill, of Charlotte, president of the senior class, described the honor system. Daniel L. Grant, editor of The Tar Heel, presided, and "Scrubby" Rives, varsity cheer leader, led in songs and cheers.

FOOTBALL PROSPECTS

Fifty-five Candidates are at Hard Practice Under Coaches Fuller and Hite

Under the leadership of a new coaching staff fifty-five members of the football squad which will face the 1920 schedule started practice on Emerson Field September 6th, four weeks before they were to meet Wake Forest in the opening game, October 2d and five weeks before they journey to New Haven to throw their strength against the Yale line.

Head Coach Myron E. Fuller and Assistant Coach Clay Hite were on hand to meet the candidates and Graduate Manager Charles T. Woolleen and Manager Donnell Van Noppen had already completed the final preparations for the start of the season.

Fuller and Hite, with no waste of time, threw their men into two sessions of practice daily, morning and afternoon. At the end of the first week the squad was scrimmaging, and when the University opened two weeks later the preliminary ground had been covered and incoming students saw a team running with remarkable smoothness and precision for so early in the season.

Head Coach Fuller has already been introduced to alumni through THE REVIEW. A graduate of Yale in 1913, where he played at guard and tackle, he has had seven years' experience at Stevens, Colby, Haverford, Swarthmore, Hog Island shipyards, and West Virginia. He handled the line at West Virginia last year and was one of the men responsible for the remarkable showing that team made.

His assistant, Clay Hite, was one of the best men on the West Virginia team last year, a four-year athlete who has won a place on several honorary teams and received favorable mention from Walter Camp last year for the All-American. He played quarter and half at West Virginia and will work especially with the backfield. Fuller himself, beside exercising general supervision, will work with the line men.

The West Virginia team last year was noted for its fierce, aggressive and versatile attack; and early observers on Emerson Field could see clearly that Fuller and Hite were going to follow the same policy at Carolina. Few Carolina teams have started practice with as much speed and aggressiveness as Captain Harrell's 1920 team. From the first day almost the cry has been for speed and more speed, and every early indication pointed to the creation of a widely divergent attacking strength.

In the squad are ten varsity veterans from Campbell's 1919 team. They are Captain Beemer Harrell and Grady Pritchard, tackles; Cline Coehran, end; David Jacobi, center; Robbins Lowe and Fred Pharr, quarters; Bob Griffith, Ed Tenney, and Abernathy, half backs; and Arthur Spaugh, full back. The letter men of last year who did not return were Captain "Nemo" Coleman, from the back field; Blount, at center; Grimes, Robbins, and Barden, at guard; Gant and Dorte, at tackle; and Proctor, at end.

Beside Coehran, who held down one wing position last year, Fuller has Crayton and Woodall, who were used in several games, Liipfert and Lewis, second-string ends, and two likely-looking youngsters in Hutehins and Fred Morris, from 1923, both strong, aggressive players. Captain Harrell and Pritchard give two experienced tackles for the line, though a shortage of guards may cause Fuller to shift Pritchard in nearer center. Hanby, a 190-pound tackle from the 1923 team, is receiving a lot of attention at tackle, and Whiting, Wright, and Meyer, all with scrub experience, are on hand.

The loss of Grimes, Robbins, and Barden in the guard positions leaves a big hole in the center of the line. Roy Morris, captain of the remarkable 1923 baseball team, has been worked in one position, and Owens, a substitute from last year, and Corbett, Heath, and Harman are other prospects. Jacobi, with his varsity experience, looks to have the call at center, with Bell of the second team and Linney, one of the best of the 1923 linemen, as understudies.

The greatest strength of the team appears to be in the back field, where Lowe, Pharr, Spaugh, Tenney, Abernathy, and Griffith have all faced the fire of varsity games. Lowe and Pharr have been used at quarter, with McDonald from 1923 and Wearn from the scrubs as substitutes. Spaugh played full back in all the games last year and was a powerful factor, particularly on defense; Tenney was a regular half; and Griffith and Abernathy developed fast enough to be used effectively in the last games. Harden, Smith, and Fulton, all of whom were used in some games last year, are on hand, and two promising 1923 men in McGee and Williams.

The squad as a whole looks lighter than last year, but is unquestionably faster and has shown ability to pick up the new system taught by Fuller and Hite.

FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

The varsity football schedule for 1920 is as follows:

- October 2—Wake Forest, at Chapel Hill.
- October 9—Yale, at New Haven.
- October 16—South Carolina, at Chapel Hill.
- October 21—A. and E., at Raleigh.

October 30—Maryland, at Chapel Hill.

November 6—V. M. I., at Chapel Hill.

November 13—Davidson, at Winston-Salem.

November 25—Virginia, at Charlottesville.

This schedule, with four games at Chapel Hill and two others in North Carolina (Raleigh and Winston-Salem) offers several innovations. The Thanksgiving game with Virginia holds its place as usual, but in accordance with the home-and-home agreement it will be played on Lambeth Field in Charlottesville. It will mark the first time a Carolina football team ever invaded Charlottesville.

The A. and E. game will take place on Thursday of Fair Week in Raleigh. It is early in the season for an important contest, but the certainty of big gate receipts, necessary to carry on the widening athletic activities, has an obvious advantage.

As an opener the annual game with Wake Forest holds its place. Especial interest is attached to this game, not only as indicating the caliber of the Tar Heels, but because of a change in the athletic policy at Wake Forest, which has brought James White, a former University of Virginia star, to the position of head coach. His work will be watched with interest. Davidson holds her usual position as the last game before the Virginia meeting.

Two newcomers appear on the schedule, South Carolina and Maryland. There is every reason why the universities of the two Carolinas should meet in athletic contests, and it is hoped by Graduate Manager Woollen to make this an annual game. South Carolina, after several years of uncertainty in football policy, has apparently straightened out her affairs and is making a fresh start under the guidance of Sol Metzger, one of the best-known coaches in America, a former Penn player and a leader at Washington and Jefferson, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and elsewhere. Head Coach Fuller has come in contact with his teams before and Assistant Coach Hite has played under him; and both of them are looking for a great battle when Metzger brings his men to Chapel Hill.

Maryland has had strong teams for several years under the coaching of "Curly" Byrd, who, as a Georgetown player met Carolina teams back in 1909 and 1910. Several State institutions in Maryland have been united under the name of the University of Maryland within the past year, and the combine is counted on to strengthen the athletic teams.

V. M. I. has been an admired and respected opponent for many years. Last season she won decisively.

R. E. Coker, '96, of the United States Bureau of Fisheries and a frequent contributor to scientific journals, is the author of an exceedingly interesting article in the June number of the National Geographic Magazine entitled Peru's Wealth-Producing Birds.

UNIVERSITY DAY EXERCISES

The presentation of a valuable portrait of General William Richardson Davie, leading spirit among the founders of the University, will be the principal event of the 1920 celebration at Chapel Hill on University Day, October 12th.

The portrait belongs to Mr. J. Alwyn Ball, of Charleston, S. C. It originally belonged to his wife, Emilie G. Fraser, now deceased, a great granddaughter of General Davie. Wishing it to be kept in a place where its permanency would be assured and knowing the close relationship between General Davie and the University, Mr. and Mrs. Ball have planned for years that this portrait should finally rest in Chapel Hill.

"During my wife's life," said Mr. Ball in a letter to President Chase, "I always told her that I would present it to the University after her death. . . . I would be much pleased if you would accept it for the University, for then I would know it was in good hands and would be carried down in history . . ."

The presentation address will be made, at Mr. Ball's suggestion, by the Rev. William Way, of Charleston, and President Chase has asked J. O. Carr, '95, of Wilmington, to accept the portrait for the University. Mr. Carr has centered a good deal of study on General Davie and has written extensively of him and of others of his day.

The portrait is an exceptionally rare specimen of the work of the French artist, Chretien, of whose work only one other example is in the United States. It is understood that General Davie had the portrait done when he was on a visit to Paris.

NEW CAROLINA PHYSICIANS

Twenty-eight Carolina alumni received license to practice medicine in North Carolina in the examinations conducted by the State board of medical examiners last June. Dr. W. I. Wooten, of Wilson, received the highest average, and thus was accorded the honor of class leader. The list follows:

Doctors A. C. Banner, Mount Airy; W. J. B. Orr, Currie; O. B. Bonner, Raleigh; T. B. Henry, Wadesboro; John Harvey, Jr., Snow Hill; J. H. Fitzgerald, Philadelphia, Pa.; R. O. Lyday, Brevard; M. A. Hatcher, Hamlet; W. T. Shaver, Badin; J. P. Rousseau, Winston-Salem; F. P. Wooten, Kinston; W. I. Wooten, Wilson; G. W. Johnson, Wallace; Ben Gold, Shelby; B. J. Barrus, Clinton; G. L. Carrington, Durham; R. B. McKnight, Charlotte; W. B. Dewar, Raleigh; W. B. Kinlaw, Rocky Mount; A. L. O'Briant, Timberlake; R. B. Rankin, Kannapolis; R. E. Brooks, Camden, N. J.; W. T. Harper, Wilmington; Z. B. V. Jones, Swan Quarter; J. K. Holloway, Raleigh; B. R. Lyon, Greensboro; Graham Harden, Burlington; E. W. Larkin, Charleston, S. C.

LIBRARY RECEIVES BATTLE COLLECTION

The University Library was the recipient in August of some thirteen hundred books, pamphlets, periodicals, bound and unbound newspapers, engravings, and a number of scrap books and pamphlet cases of newspaper clippings from the library of the late Kemp Plummer Battle, '49, the titles being donated to the library by the Battle family.

Through the receipt of this gift which, if a money value could be placed upon it would amount to several thousand dollars, the library has been strengthened in four very important fields. First of all, the collection is particularly rich in publications relating to the University itself. It includes the rare early volumes of the Magazine, the most complete file in existence of University Catalogues, rare commencement programs, copies of addresses delivered on University occasions, and numerous single publications which Dr. Battle utilized in the preparation of his two-volume history of the University.

The second distinctive field covered is that of North Carolina history. Among the more important publications in this division are the Documents of the Convention of 1861 (excessively rare), the Ship Fraud Commission report, sessions laws of North Carolina from 1800 to 1815, bound volumes of North Carolina newspapers issued from 1860 to 1865, reports of the various railroads of the State, early reports of the Board for Internal Improvements, journals of the various constitutional conventions of North Carolina, and numerous pamphlets concerning North Carolinians and incidents in North Carolina history.

The third division relates particularly to the Confederacy and publications centering around it. The most important (and rarest) of these are two volumes of documents of the Confederate States, laws of the Confederate States, military orders of the day, Confederate imprints, and miscellaneous newspapers issued throughout the South during the period of the war.

The fourth division comprises publications concerning the history of the Episcopal Church in North Carolina and of the Episcopal Church in America during the three decades preceding, embracing, and following the Civil War. A complete bound file of the Journal of the Convention of the North Carolina Diocese from 1817 to 1869, together with unbound numbers from 1869 to date and copies of the Journals of the Eastern and Western Diocese, are included. In addition, there are a number of lives of Episcopal bishops, collections of sermons, and other interesting publications growing out of the Episcopal Church.

In addition to these principal interests, the donation covers other subjects. It also includes the remainder of the edition of Dr. Battle's two-volume history of the University, the proceeds from the future sales of which are to be used for the purchase of books for the department of history.

In making this extremely valuable donation to the library the Battle family has enabled the University to conserve in large measure the library which Dr. Battle gathered together in his long life time, and to further the teaching of North Carolina and Southern history to which a large part of Dr. Battle's life was devoted.

Another very important addition was made to the library's collection of North Caroliniana through the purchase in July of the library of Miss Christine Fisher, of Salisbury. This collection, which covered particularly the decades of 1810 to 1860, was gathered together by Miss Fisher's father, Hon. Charles Fisher, her brother, Colonel Charles F. Fisher, and her niece, the late Frances Tiernan (Christian Reid). Among the publications which number from 1,000 to

HOME OF THE LATE DR. KEMP PLUMMER BATTLE

1,500 titles, were 20 odd volumes of bound newspapers, such as the National Intelligencer, the Western Carolinian (Salisbury) in 1820, unbound and incomplete files of the old South Atlantic Monthly (Wilmington), DeBow's Review, Southern Review, Southern Literary Messenger, and other State and Southern newspapers and periodicals bound and unbound. Miss Fisher's father, Hon. Charles Fisher, was a prominent legislator and member of Congress. As a result, his library was rich in political publications, a number of which related to political contests in Western North Carolina. Miss Fisher's brother, Charles F. Fisher, was president of the Western North Carolina Railroad and he was the possessor of a valuable file of State and southern railroad reports. The library of Mrs. Tiernan was rich in current magazines and books.

One of the most interesting parts of the collection was that containing a number of letters from John C. Calhoun, manuscripts, treaties made by Western North Carolina Indians, and early deeds and legal papers, some of which bore the signature and official seal of Governor Martin. All in all the collection is a most unusual one and its acquisition adds greatly to the value of the total North Carolina collection. The purchase was made possible through funds placed at the disposal of the library by Mr. John Sprunt Hill, '89, who for a number of years has contributed to the upbuilding of this section of the library.

MRS. JAMES LEE LOVE DIES IN CAMBRIDGE

News reached Chapel Hill on Sunday, September 19th, of the death on that day in Cambridge, Mass., of Mrs. James Lee Love, daughter of the late Mrs. Cornelia Phillips Spence, and wife of Professor James Lee Love, '84, who, as teacher of mathematics has been a member of the faculties of the University of North Carolina and later of Harvard.

Mrs. Love lived for the first thirty years of her life in Chapel Hill and belonged to a family that has been intimately associated with the University for many years. Her mother, Mrs. Spence, was long and prominently identified with the University and shared with Dr. Battle through her indefatigable work in the honor of bringing about the reopening of the University in 1875. In recognition of these services of high distinction both to the University and to the State, Mrs. Love's mother was awarded the LL. D. degree by the University in later years and one of the dormitories at the North Carolina College for Women was named in her honor.

Mrs. Love taught for several years at Peace Institute but had been living in Cambridge for a number of years. When the railroad between University Station and Chapel Hill was completed in 1882 exercises were held to celebrate the event and the mallet which Mrs. Love used in driving the last spike is now preserved at the University. Surviving her are her husband, Professor James Lee Love, Miss Cornelia Love, of the University library, and Mr. Spencer Love, of Gastonia.

Funeral services were held in Cambridge on Tuesday, September 21st, and before interment in the local cemetery here on Thursday a service, beautiful in its simplicity and attended by members of the University community and friends throughout the State, was held in the Episcopal Church, Dr. W. D. Moss, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, of which Mrs. Love was a devoted member in her girlhood, officiating.

CHANGES IN THE FACULTY

Many changes in the faculty went into effect as the 1920 session of the University opened.

George M. McKie, Associate Professor of Public Speaking, who has had a year's leave of absence which he spent in western North Carolina has returned to resume his duties. Sturgis E. Leavitt, Associate Professor of Romance Language, who has been in South America for a year, also under a leave of absence, has returned; and John W. Lasley, Associate Professor of Mathematics, after a year's study at the University of Chicago, has rejoined the Department of Mathematics.

Four members of the faculty have been granted leaves of absence. Professor Collier Cobb is spending his time working on geological problems on both sides of the Pacific Ocean. Dr. W. M. Dey, Professor of Romance Languages, is in France, both he and Professor Cobb being the first to receive leaves of absence under the Kenan Fund. Professor Norman Foerster is in England on his sabbatical year. Professor N. W. Walker is studying at Harvard.

The additions to the faculty announced at commencement were J. W. Matherly, Associate Professor of Commerce; William Critz George, Associate Professor of Embryology and Histology; C. E. Green, Assistant Professor of Romance Languages; William F. Thrall, Assistant Professor of English; John B. Woosley, Assistant Professor of Economics; H. M. Taylor, Instructor in Chemistry; W. D. McMillan, Instructor in English.

During the summer the following men were added to the faculty and accepted at a meeting of the executive committee of the trustees in September: Francis Bradshaw, '16, to be Dean of Students in place of Professor Frank Graham, who has resigned his Deanship but remains in the History Department; John J. Davis, formerly at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Assistant Professor of Romance Languages; Howard R. Huse, Johns Hopkins, Assistant Professor in Romance Languages; W. B. Jones, University of Alabama, Assistant Professor of Physics; Earle C. Peacock, Harvard, Assistant Professor of Accounting; Harry F. Latschaw, Instructor in Latin; Thomas H. Hamilton, Assistant Director of Music (Mr. Hamilton will give instruction in voice and piano); Charles W. Camp, Columbia University, Instructor in English; A. C. Howell, Columbia University, Instructor in English.

Associate Professor W. S. Bernard has been promoted to Professor of Greek. Professor Archibald Henderson has been named Head of the Department of Mathematics in place of Professor Cain, who retired last year under a pension from the Carnegie Foundation.

In the new School of Public Welfare Dr. Jesse F. Steiner, formerly Director of Educational Service with the American Red Cross, has been added to the faculty through the co-operation of the Red Cross.

Professor Towles will act as head of the Department of Romance Languages and Professor Prouty of Geology in the absence of Professors Cobb and Dey. Dean Carroll will be temporary head of the Department of Economics until a successor to Dr. Raper is named.

PARK PLACE COMPLETED FOR FACULTY

Building records in Chapel Hill were broken when, before the University opened in September, Business Manager Charles T. Woollen threw open for occupancy by members of the faculty the latest suburban development of the University, "Park Place," where in less than four months ten houses have been built and are now occupied by Professors Weaver, Carroll, Koch, Prouty, Dashiell, Winsor, Baker, and Hibberd, and Dean Bradshaw and Captain Boye, and their families.

The new development came as a result of congested housing conditions among members of the faculty. With the town crammed to the last house and with new professors coming in the situation seemed desperate until the Trustees transferred part of the University funds for the building of faculty houses. On a rush order the houses were obtained, made-to-order, from the Aladdin Company and by importing carpenters daily from Durham and elsewhere in automobiles were completed on scheduled time.

"Park Place" is situated on University property that lies on the northern edge of Battle Park. A line drawn directly south from the home of Dr. Pratt meeting another line running east from the old Battle home would include the whole development. A road has been constructed from the home of the Misses Moses, furnishing access from the west; another road from Franklin Street by Dr. Pratt's, furnishing access in that direction, and a third street from Franklin south between the Herty and Lawson residences gives still another means of entrance. The land on which the houses are built slopes and rolls down to the branch on the edge of Battle Park. It is partly wooded and when developed further in accordance with plans already made will be one of the most beautiful spots around the University.

NEW CAROLINA LAWYERS

Forty-three Carolina alumni received license to practice law at the examinations conducted by the State supreme court in August. Of this number thirty-three went direct from the University Law School. Miss Kathrine Robinson, of Fayetteville, was adjudged class leader on the basis of having submitted the best paper handed in by any applicant for license. The list follows:

J. V. Baggett, Clinton; G. A. Barden, New Bern; F. O. Bowman, Berea, Ky.; J. M. Brittain, Asheboro; L. H. Clement, Jr., Salisbury; C. R. Daniel, Weldon; Hugh Dortch, Goldsboro; H. L. Fagg, Greensboro; W. C. Feimster, Jr., Newton; G. K. Freeman, Goldsboro; E. S. Hale, Mt. Airy; W. F. Harvey, Littleton; M. J. Hatcher, Mt. Olive; J. B. Hill, Warsaw; J. S. Howell, Asheville; H. M. Jackson, Clinton; M. M. Jernigan, Dunn; J. C. Kennedy, Moltonville; G. W. King, Charlotte; W. E. Matthews, Clinton; F. W. Orr, Charlotte; J. B. Palmer, Warrenton; J. H. Paylor, Laurinburg; R. F. Phillips, Raleigh; M. S. Revell, Kenly; Miss Kathrine Robinson, Fayetteville; D. Shaw, Fayetteville; G. A. Shuford, Jr., Asheville; H. H. Walker, New Castle; G. A. Younee, Spencer; W. B. Umstead, Durham; J. G. Roberts, Charlotte; V. F. Williams, Faison; C. H. Edwards, Goldsboro; S. R. Lucas, Wilson; Miss Louise Alexander, Greensboro; Odie Ingram, High Point; Eugene Mills, Raleigh; Jas. R. Patton, Durham; W. H. Pittman, Raleigh; Paul F. Smith, Raleigh; F. L. Webster, Wilkesboro; Bryce Little, Wilson.

RALEIGH MASQUE TO BE PRESENTED IN OCTOBER

The pageant-drama, Raleigh, The Shepherd of the Ocean, by Frederick H. Koch, will be produced in Raleigh on October 19, 20, and 21, during the week of the State Fair. The pageant-drama was designed to celebrate the tercentenary of the anniversary of Sir Walter Raleigh's execution and its presentation will form a part of the larger celebration in this country and England of the Pilgrim Tercentenary. This is the first production to be given under the direction of the University and in co-operation with the Division of Community Drama of the Bureau of Extension. The performance is being produced by the people from Raleigh under the direction of Miss Elizabeth B. Grimball from Community Service in New York. It will be presented probably at the ball grounds and about five hundred people will participate as actors in the performance.

SUMMER SCHOOL HAS RECORD ENROLLMENT

The largest number of students that ever studied anywhere in North Carolina in the summer was present in Chapel Hill for the 33d session of the Summer School, June 22-August 5, and for the Summer Law School. The registration in the Summer School was 1,147 and in the Law School, 45, making a total of 1,192. The women numbered 828.

Director N. W. Walker called it the most successful Summer School in every respect ever conducted by the University. Beside the attendance figures, he said that the work was done better than he had ever seen it, the courses covered a wider range of subjects, and the attitude of teachers and students had been admirable.

Among the features of the Summer School were a musical festival conducted by Professor Weaver and Mr. William Breach, with a chorus of 75 voices rendering an Indian cantata, "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast"; productions by the Carolina Playmakers of original North Carolina plays and of "Twelfth Night"; a course in citizenship culminating in an election and campaign on the ratification of the suffrage amendment wherein the women of the Summer School were taught the practical steps in registering and voting (suffrage won by a 3 to 1 margin); productions of Irish and Shakespearian plays by the Frank McEntee Company.

A number of institutes were held during the summer, including the new Public Welfare Institutes, which attracted widespread attention in and out of the State, the Child Welfare Institute, and the Community Service Institute.

NEW CAROLINA PHARMACISTS

Twenty-one students from the University School of Pharmacy became registered druggists at the examinations conducted by the State board last June. P. J. Melvin led the class in the examinations. The list follows:

GRAVES PROPERTY CHANGES HANDS

The largest real estate deal that Chapel Hill has known in many years was announced in August in the sale by Mrs. Julia H. Graves (Mrs. Ralph H. Graves), of Philadelphia, of the Graves property on Cameron Avenue and Columbia Streets to John Sprunt Hill, of Durham, and W. S. Roberson, of Chapel Hill, who at the same time outlined plans for building on the rear of the property twelve brick cottages to house students.

The front part of the property on which are a cottage and a large house now occupied by Mrs. M. W. Daniel, will remain unchanged for the present.

Contracts for two of the cottages were closed in August and Mr. Hill said they would be finished by Christmas. An immediate expenditure of some $30,000 is contemplated by the owners of "West Court," as the development is to be called, with the probability that a great deal more will be spent eventually.

The plans for the building of cottages for students have been hailed by President Chase and Business Manager Woollen as the quickest possible relief to the housing situation of the campus and in town, which President Chase has said is "extremely critical."

"It is, so far as I know, a unique plan in the South," said President Chase, "and it comes at a time when the University is looking everywhere for places to house students."

The Graves property adjoins the University campus and is in the direction in which further University extension is planned. Columbia Street will be extended to run along the eastern, or campus, side of the property and old South Street will be opened up to run between the Raleigh and Pittsboro roads along the southern side of "West Court."

The cottages will be one-story, 4-room buildings and will house eight students each. It is understood that the rent will be approximately the same as for college dormitories and the backers of the development say they can house students at about one-half the cost involved in the construction of a dormitory. A number of University alumni are interested in the development.

COL. S. W. MINOR RECEIVES D. S. C.

Press dispatches of September 18, under the date line of Danville, Va., carried the following story concerning Col. S. W. Minor:

Col. S. W. Minor, who came here at the beginning of September from Durham, N. C., today received a distinguished service cross for valiant service to his country while in France. The medal arrived this morning consigned to Sergeant E. McDaniel, of the local recruiting station, and was duly delivered during the afternoon. Colonel Minor, who for 25 years was affiliated with the North Carolina national guard was elevated to the rank of colonel soon after America entered the lists and he commanded the 120th regiment, infantry, 30th division. Colonel Minor heard some weeks ago that the decoration had been authorized. It is for generally effective work as the leader of his organization. The citation runs:

"For exceptionally meritorious and conspicuous services as commander of the 120th infantry from the time of its organization and training to the completion and combat operation. In the Ypres-Lys and Somme offensives he displayed at all times initiative and sound judgment. During the attack of the Hindenburg line near Bellecourt, France, September 29, 1918, and during subsequent advances he handled his regiment with distinction, capturing several towns, numerous cannon and many prisoners. He has rendered services of material worth to the American expeditionary forces."

ALUMNI NOTES FROM PHILLIPS HALL

Of last year's graduating class in Electrical Engineering two of the men have gone directly into the practice of their profession in the State. E. C. Ballentine is with the Carolina Power and Light Company at Raleigh, and C. W. Burton is with the Southern Public Utilities Company at Winston-Salem.

C. P. Boliek, C. M. Hazlehurst and W. E. Merritt are with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company at East Pittsburg. P. P. Lynch, Jr., is with the Aluminum Ore Company at East St. Louis and William Neal is with the Standard Oil Company, New York City.

R. D. Ballew, '18, is with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, Detroit, Mich. W. C. Walke, '16, was with the Westinghouse Company for a time and is now field engineer of the rural engineering division of the State Highway Commission with headquarters at Chapel Hill. G. W. Smith, '16, is with the Carolina Shipbuilding Company, Wilmington. W. H. Joyner, '16, is with the Western Electric Company, Chicago, Ill. C. D. Taylor, '14, is with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, Pittsburgh, Pa.

M. N. Oates, '14, is with the Consolidated Electric Light and Power Company, Baltimore, Md. J. W. McIver, '13, is with the Edison Lamp Works, Harrison, N. J. J. M. Labberton, '13, is with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, East Pittsburg, Pa. H. L. Parish, '12, is with the Electric Supply and Equipment Company, Charlotte. F. Llorens, '11, is with the Santiago Electric Traction Company, Santiago, Cuba. W. B. Ellis, '11, is manager of the Southern Public Utilities Company, Greenville, S. C. F. V. Fuentes, '10, is superintendent of the Camaguey Electric Company, Camaguey, Cuba.

F. M. Weller, '06, is superintendent of power sales of the Consolidated Gas Electric Light and Power Company, Baltimore, Md. R. H. McLain, '06, is in the power and mining engineering department of the General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y. C. N. Sloan, '17, is in the electrical contracting business at Charlotte, associated with the general engineering and contracting firm of Tucker and Laxton. Fred M. Laxton, '96, is at the head of this firm which is one of the largest of its kind in the Carolinas.

LOUIS GRAVES WINS TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

Louis Graves, '02, won the tennis championship of North Carolina in September when he defeated Professor P. H. Winston on the courts of the Greensboro Country Club, 7-5, 6-3, 1-6, 6-2. Professor Winston had formerly held the title. Graves and Winston, paired together, won the doubles championship, defeating Blair and McCauley, of Greensboro, in the final round.

Mr. Graves spent the month of September in North Carolina, much of it in Chapel Hill, finishing a series of articles for The World's Work on prohibition as it has worked out in Pennsylvania and North Carolina. A story by him, "Getting the Stuff in Carolina," printed in The New Republic, during the summer and copied in part by The Literary Digest, attracted widespread interest and elicited much editorial comment, both in the State and elsewhere. One writer in Musical America was so interested in the moonshine industry as outlined by Graves that he thought an opera ought to be written on the general subject.

Mr. Graves has had several other stories published in the past few months, including fiction in Leslie's Weekly and The Metropolitan, and casual essays in Harper's Monthly. He has written a series of articles called "An American in the Orient," based largely on the diary and letters of Willard Straight. This series is being published in the magazine Asia. Mr. Graves' New York address is 138 East 37th Street.

Chief Justice Walter Clark, '64, of the North Carolina Supreme Court, was the principal speaker at the unveiling of a tablet in memory of General James Johnston Pettigrew at Bunker Hill, Va., on September 17, 1920. General Pettigrew, as alumni familiar with the history of the University will recall, was a member of the class of 1847 and was considered one of the most brilliant students ever in attendance here. A classmate of the late Generals A. M. Scales and M. W. Ransom, he was wounded at the Battle of Falling Waters, Maryland, on July 4, 1863, and died thirteen days later. Judge Clark's address was published in various North Carolina daily papers Sunday, September 19th.

IS THE ALUMNI LOYALTY FUND A SUCCESS?

WELL, YOU'VE SAID SOMETHING!

Established in 1916, it amounted on June 14 to	$10,500
1915 added on Alumni Day	650
1895 on its 20th anniversary pledged	2,500

The total for the four years is $13,650

Does this total include your contribution? Why not do as the Yale man did who found he had been guilty of the sin of omission? His letter follows:

“Enclosed you will find my check for $10.00 for this year's Alumni Fund. Although I was graduated from Yale some few years ago I am ashamed to say this is the first contribution I have made to the Alumni Fund since leaving New Haven. Why I have not contributed before I cannot say. I think it must be charged up to negligence more than anything else, for the appeals that have come from my class agents have been forceful and convincing, and ought to have been responded to long ago.

“As a non-giver who has not been helping to ‘bear the load’ I am glad to experience this change of feeling and be counted on the list of those who are giving annually to this most needed and democratic fund.”

THE UNIVERSITY IN PRINT

THE CONQUEST OF THE OLD SOUTHWEST

Among books issued during the summer by members of the faculty one of especial interest to students of American history is the Conquest of the Old Southwest, by Dr. Archibald Henderson, '98, which carries on the title page by way of further description of the book the subtitle The Romantic Story of the Early Pioneers into Virginia, the Carolinas, Tennessee, and Kentucky, 1740-1790. The volume (The Century Co., New York City, 1920, 395 pp. D. $3.00) treats of "the romantic and thrilling story of the southward and westward migration of successive waves of transplanted European peoples throughout the entire course of the eighteenth century," which Dr. Henderson characterizes as being "the history of the growth and evolution of American democracy." To add to its attractiveness the text is supplemented by numerous pictures, maps, facsimilies, and portraits, among the last named of which may be noted those of Daniel Boone, Richard Henderson, James Grant, Arthur Dobbs, Isaac Shelby, William Lenoir, Alexander Martin, Hugh Waddell, James Robertson, John Murray, and John Sevier. Bibliographies and bibliographical notes have received the particular attention of the author as has also a comprehensive index of materials.

A word of explanation is in order concerning the character of notices that will appear under the caption The University in Print in this and future issues of THE REVIEW. First of all, the caption is sufficiently broad to avoid the rather captious criticism once made of the heading The University in Letters: "that very little which was referred to in the columns could properly be styled 'letters', and that the caption excluded reference to publications in other fields, particularly the sciences." Hereafter "in print" will replace "in letters." This expression surely, takes in quite a good deal of territory, and will cover notices concerning books, monographs, and magazine articles published by alumni and members of the faculty; positions held by alumni and instructors on editorial boards, magazines and newspapers; addresses and participation in meetings and learned societies, and occasionally editorials or news articles appearing in other publications which relate to the University, its publications, or the published work of its faculty or alumni.

In the second place, it is not the intention of THE REVIEW in carrying these notices—for they are to be mere notices, and nothing more—to present formal, critical reviews of books and magazine articles. It is merely to tell its readers that the University through its faculty and alumni, is alert in these particular fields and that the work indicated has been done. It is taken for granted that if more extended, critical estimates are desired they will be sought in those publications, literary and scientific, or what not, in which such estimates usually appear.—Editors.

The State University and the New South is the title of a 104-page booklet just issued by the University containing the Proceedings of the Inauguration of Harry Woodburn Chase as President of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C., April 28, 1920. The Inaugural Programme, the Order of Academic Procession, with the lists of delegates from learned societies, universities and colleges, together with the Inaugural Address of President Chase and the addresses of the various speakers who were heard on the platform in Memorial Hall and at the Inaugural Dinner, appear in the order of the exercises of the day. This attractively printed souvenir record of the Inauguration of President Chase was prepared for the press by Messrs. L. R. Wilson, '99, and Lenoir Chambers, '14. Copies have been mailed to all members of the Board of Trustees, and alumni may secure copies upon request to the Secretary to the President.

R. W. Madry, '18, in charge of the news service of the University and managing editor of THE REVIEW in 1918-19, is now on the staff of the Paris edition of the New York Herald. Mr. Madry graduated from the Pulitzer School of Journalism of Columbia University in June and has been on duty for the Herald in Italy, Switzerland, and France for the past three months. He will return to the United States in the near future.

A Pioneer in the Stoker Field

Westinghouse was one of the first among the pioneers in the stoker field.

Although power stations have grown to enormous size, with sudden peak loads in some instances reaching as high as 300 and 400 per cent normal rating, the remarkable fact remains that the design of the Westinghouse Roney Stoker remains today practically the same as it was thirty-three years ago and that it still retains its firm position in the combustion field. This speaks for the accuracy of the original design. The Roney Stoker is particularly suitable for steady power demands with moderate overloads of 25 to 50 per cent, and it burns a wide range of fuels satisfactorily. Simple design, low first cost and ease of installation, strongly recommend it for plants of moderate size. Over three million horsepower have been installed.

Industrial expansion, however, has wrought many changes in power plant practice since 1887. Today mechanical stokers are called upon to burn everything from high-grade coals down to refuse. They are also called upon to meet the sudden and enormous steaming capacities. Hence, two additional stokers were added, and our line now includes the Chain Grate Stoker, particularly adapted to the burning of low-grade, high-ash fuels; and the Underfeed Stoker, which is unequalled in its ability to handle the sudden and enormous overload demands of central station service with the highest degree of efficiency.

Westinghouse
Success Is Based Upon Its Pioneer Work and Development in Electrical and Mechanical Engineering

1920

It is a fact of vital importance to the stoker buyer that we manufacture the three general types, because stoker application should be approached with an open mind and the stoker manufacturer should be guided in his recommendations purely by the facts that develop from a study of fuel and load requirements.

A college man analyzed his class to see how many could afford to subscribe to the Alumni Endowment Fund

A GRADUATE of one of the foremost colleges was asked to conduct the alumni endowment campaign among the members of his class. He made an analysis of the ninety-six members, according to his estimate of their financial resources, dividing them into three groups.

In the first group he included those to whom a gift of $300 would be impossible; forty men made up this group.

The second group included those to whom $300 would represent a maximum gift; there were thirty-seven men in this group. The third group included those who could give more than $300; there were nineteen men in this group.

Why some college men earn so much more than others

The members of that class have been out of college more than twenty years; they are an average lot of hard-working, capable men.

Yet less than a third of the whole number are earning more than a mere living. What is the explanation?

Among these men, of course, are a good many teachers and ministers. Salary in their case, is no criterion of success.

But with the men in business, and in most of the professions, income is one basis of measurement. And if you will analyze this class—or any other—you will find this striking fact:

That the great majority have become settled in departmental places, while only one man here and there has gained the all-round knowledge of all departments of modern business that fits him to discharge high executive responsibility, or to engage in business on his own account.

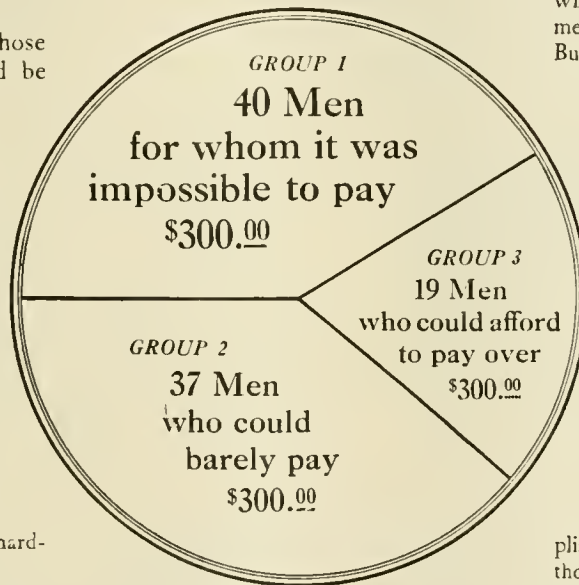

An institution for rounding out men

The Alexander Hamilton Institute was called into being to meet a definite need.

A group of educators and business leaders had been impressed with the fact that modern business develops specialists but does not train executives.

They determined to provide a Course and Service which would enable a man to add to his equipment a working knowledge of the departments of business outside his less emphatic and impressive than the indorsement of the schools. In the U. S. Steel Corporation 545 Alexander Hamilton Institute men are at work; in the General Motors Corporation 335 men are to be found; in the Goodyear Rubber Company 319; in the Standard Oil Company 801. There is no great industry in the country which does not have somewhere among its executives, large or small, men who have profited by the Modern Business Course and Service.

Not money merely, but satisfaction

The Alexander Hamilton Institute does not base its claim for consideration upon its power to increase men's incomes. Increased income and power follow naturally increased knowledge. But the real product of the Institute is self-satisfaction and self-confidence—the sense of content that comes to a man when he knows he is making the most out of his life that he possibly can make.

Evidence that the Institute can accomplish this result and has accomplished it for thousands of men is contained in a book entitled

“Forging Ahead in Business”

Just what the Modern Business Course and Service is, just how it fits into your own personal needs; just what it has achieved for other men in positions similar to yours—all this is fully covered in “Forging Ahead in Business.” It is a guide to business progress well worth any thoughtful man's attention. And it is sent without obligation. Send for your copy today.

own. To give the salesman, for example, a working knowledge of accounting and office management; to give the inside man a working knowledge of sales, merchandising, advertising, corporation finance, etc.—in other words, an institution, whose business should be to round out men into full business leadership.

In the succeeding years thousands of men, representing every kind of business and every department in business have enrolled in the Alexander Hamilton Institute, and have proved by their own experience its power to shorten the path to success.

Great universities and great businesses

No similar educational institution has ever received such high indorsement at the hands of educational authorities. In forty-four leading universities and colleges, the books of the Institute are used as texts.

And the indorsement of business is no

Making Nitroglycerin* in a Hercules Plant

The man who makes nitroglycerin in a Hercules Plant is the personification of concentration. No railroad engineer pays closer attention to his semaphore signals than does he to the thermometer of the nitrating tank. From the moment when he begins to feed glycerin into the acid in the tank until the operation is complete the thermometer is his guide.

It is important that the temperature of the mixture in the tank be kept uniform. If glycerin is added too rapidly the temperature rises, if too slowly it falls. So with eye on thermometer and hand on valve controlling the glycerin flow the Hercules "N. G." maker follows the process minute by minute until its completion.

To just such watchful care as this is the uniform high quality of Hercules Explosives largely due. The men who work in the twelve Hercules plants realize the importance of the great tasks performed by Hercules Explosives. As a result, wherever these explosives are used—in the building of railroads or highways, in the mining of metals and minerals, to increase the crops on a farm or dig the foundation for a city hotel—their great power is never found lacking.

Hercules Explosives are always dependable—uniform in quality, high in power.

*Nitroglycerin is made by combining, in exactly the proper proportions, glycerin with a mixture of nitric and sulphuric acids. The combination takes place in a tank equipped with brine coils (for cooling purposes) and agitators which insure thorough agitation.

Modern Motive Might

MOUNTAINS, miles and minutes give way before electricity, the magic motive power. Properly applied, it drives giant locomotives across the continental divide, tows ocean liners through the Panama Canal, or propels huge ships.

Through good light, safe signals, and illuminated highways, it is making travel better and safer and also is increasing the usefulness of transportation methods on land, sea or in the air.

In short, electricity is revolutionizing transportation, making it quicker, safer, more economical and reliable in all sorts of weather.

And back of this development in electric transportation, in generating and transmitting apparatus as well as motive mechanisms, are the co-ordinated scientific, engineering and manufacturing resources of the General Electric Company, working to the end that electricity may better serve mankind.
